Management commentaryMarket recap

In February, global bond markets were influenced by significant central bank pivots, renewed AI and private credit liquidity scares and heightened geopolitical risk in the Middle East. The latter causing markets to go into a risk off mode, especially towards the last week of the month. Overall, global bond yields are lower and credit spreads are higher, both to levels not seen since the last October.

In Japan, yields on 10-year bonds climbed above 2% for the first time in two decades, while 40-year yields surged to record highs following Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi's calls for increased fiscal spending. This volatility was compounded by a snap election on February 8, which saw the ruling party secure a supermajority. The PM later dialled down on the fiscal expansion policy rhetoric, allowing yields on the long end to retrace 50bps from the highs (-25bps mtd).

The Reserve Bank of Australia raised interest rates to 3.85%, citing a "materially shifted" economic outlook and the need for more restrictive financial conditions to combat persistent inflation. Minutes from the meeting indicate that while policymakers prioritize price stability, future decisions will depend on evolving economic data rather than a fixed path. This move from RBA confirmed the hawkish pivot in their policy.

Elsewhere, among major central banks, the ECB and the BOE kept their rates unchanged. The BOE surprised in a dovish fashion on both the vote (5-4) and the outlook, with greater confidence in easing inflation pressure.

In the U.S., Treasury yields ticked lower over the month as investors awaited guidance on the Fed's next steps following the nomination of Kevin Warsh as the next Fed Chair. By late February, the U.S. yields were also influenced by safe-haven demand amid a heightened probability of military strikes in the Middle East sparking a flight to quality. Strong equity results from AI sector also failed attract investors as private credit liquidity fears dominated.

Credit markets were impacted by the risk of shift in the market tone with spreads widening throughout the month. Despite this, global investment-grade issuance reached record levels, on track for a 35% year-on-year increase in 2026. Emerging Market Debt posted positive total returns despite some spread widening in hard currency space.

Local currency fared better with yields lower, particularly in Europe and Latin America (notably in Mexico, due to poor macro data), despite the month end risk off mood. South Africa saw rates flattening again with front end selling off unlike its EM peers and long end rallying following the budget announcement. A usual "buy the rumour, sell the fact" and heavy positioning led to some reduction there.

The U.S. dollar trade weighted index was stronger in February. In majors, CHF was the weakest giving up 0.9% after January spike, working less as a risk off hedge (unusual enough to be noted). EUR weakened somewhat driven by heavy positioning and mixed macro data. JPY failed to appreciate despite smaller fiscal concerns following the snap elections. NOK showed a strong performance on the back of high inflation and oil price appreciation, pushing back against odds of rate cuts. Commodity currencies and EMFX posted again very strong returns.

Performance

AF-Global Aggregate Fund outperformed its benchmark in February with both posting positive total returns over the month. Currencies led the pack this month with our longs in emerging markets and intra-bloc trades contributing. Curve trades were also a standout contributor on a flattener in Australia and a steepener in Canada. Country allocation, bond selection and positions in inflation linked bonds were marginally negative on balance. Credit and emerging market positions detracted as spreads widened into the month end.

Positioning changes

The fund decreased its overweight in duration during February, mostly via increasing our underweight in the US. Elsewhere, we have increased our overweight in Australia and an underweight in Canada. In credit, our modest overweight to European Financials was little changed over the month. In emerging markets, we added to our long in Mexico. In currencies, we extended NZD and MXN longs, added to short in ILS and trimmed the USD long.

Outlook

Geopolitical risk have taken over the markets with events in the Middle East. Given the fluidity of the situation we think it is premature to make any significant changes to meaningfully change strategic risk in the portfolio.

Our primary concerns are the conflict's duration and geographic expansion, and the knock-on effects for global growth, inflation and central-bank policy. Although roughly 20% of global crude and refined product flows transits the Strait of Hormuz, that volume is heavily skewed toward Asia, providing some insulation for US and European markets.

How long the conflict will last and more importantly if oil can flow will be critical to growth and inflation and financial markets. We continue to monitor the situation and remain nimble. So far we keep our strategic positions. A repricing of credit could offer an opportunity to add risk although would require more attractive levels.

Overall the fund has a small long in overall duration, but with sizeable country bets as we disagree with market pricings on many countries and curves. Specifically, we are long Europe, the UK, Australia where we see more central bank cuts and attractive valuations. Conversely, we are underweight US, Canada and Japan where we expect higher growth and potentially sticky inflation. We are also long selected emerging markets where we see high real yields and a potential for country rerating.

In currencies, similar to interest rates, we seek to exploit plentiful relative value opportunities. We are long emerging markets via commodity exporters (MXN, BRL, CLP, ZAR) and short ILS. We short EUR Bloc via CHF and GBP and slightly long USD.

At the end of the period the fund has a yield of 5.6% versus 4.4% of the benchmark; a duration of 6.4 years versus 6.1 years of the benchmark and an average credit rating A versus AA- of the benchmark.

ESG Terminology

ESG criteria

The criteria are extra-financial criteria used to assess the Environmental, Social and Governance practices of companies, states or local authorities:
 "E" for Environment (energy and gas consumption levels, water and waste management, etc.).
 "S" for Social/Society (respect for human rights, health and safety in the workplace, etc.).
 "G" for Governance (independence of board of directors, respect for shareholders' rights, etc.)

ESG Rating

The issuer's ESG rating: each issuer is assessed on the basis of ESG criteria and obtains a quantitative score, the scale of which is based on the sector average. The score is translated into a rating on a scale from A (highest rating) to G (lowest rating). The Amundi methodology provides for a comprehensive, standardised and systematic analysis of issuers across all investment regions and asset classes (equities, bonds, etc.).

ESG rating of the investment universe and the portfolio: the portfolio and the investment universe are given an ESG score and an ESG rating (from A to G). The ESG score corresponds to the weighted average of the issuers' scores, calculated according to their relative weighting in the investment universe or in the portfolio, excluding liquid assets and non-rated issuers.

Amundi ESG Mainstreaming

In addition to complying with Amundi Responsible Investment Policy⁴, Amundi ESG Mainstreaming portfolios have an ESG performance objective that aims to achieve a portfolio ESG score above the ESG score of their ESG Investment universe.

¹ The investment universe reference is defined by either the fund's reference indicator or an index representative of the ESG-related investable universe.

² Percentage of securities with an Amundi ESG rating out of the total portfolio (measured in weight) that can be related.

³ Percentage of securities for which an ESG rating methodology is applicable out of total portfolio (measured in weight).
